

Remsha Bibi

Year 3 Student in International Hospitality and Attractions Management

“Although I have rudimentary baking abilities, I have learnt and discovered healthy baking recipes and adjusted baking for health reasons, which has piqued my interest in nursing.”

I'm Remsha, Pakistan is where I was born and raised. Despite the fact that I have lived in Hong Kong for nine years, I am still unfamiliar with Chinese culture and language. I graduated from CMA Choi Chung Kok Secondary School. After DSE, I received an offer from JUPAS to study as a Bachelor in International Hospitality and Attraction Management. I am a third-year student at the Metropolitan University of Hong Kong.

My childhood ambition was to work as a policewoman. My family does not want me to become a teacher, but they have always supported me throughout my life. One of the most memorable experiences I had was doing an NCS internship at the Fire Department. It had aided me in regaining my confidence when working with the locals. I learned more about the fire department's discipline, rules, and regulations. I was able to have good time management skills after completing my internship. I'm hoping to find a nice job in the hospitality industry after I finish my bachelor's degree.

My favorite subjects during secondary school were Arts and Biology, but I had to choose between one of the electives, which I did because my teacher recommended it. Badminton, cycling, and baking are three of my favorite pastimes. Since I was a child, I've had a passion for baking and designing. HIA provides an opportunity to teach cooking classes to Ethnic Minorities, which makes it possible for me to enhance my cooking skills while learning teaching methods. My baking capabilities help me to open an online shop on a platform. Once I've gained enough experience, my dream is to establish a bakery. Although I have rudimentary baking abilities, I have learnt and discovered healthy baking recipes and adjusted baking for health reasons, which has piqued my interest in nursing. I had to learn about health issues and how to live a healthy lifestyle because I had to. I also underwent a basic health examination, which piqued my interest in the medical area.

Heath In Action is a Hong Kong-based non-governmental organization. Their main goal is to assist working poor families, ethnic minorities, and refugees in the area. They provide a variety of ethnic minority classes. It also assisted me in determining my future professional path.
